

CONCHO BAIL BONDS DEPOSIT POLICY

I, _____, hereby acknowledge that I am depositing with Concho Bail Bonds the amount of _____ dollars ($_____).

I do hereby acknowledge that the above said amount will be held in escrow until the herein named defendant, _____, shall make his/her presence in court.

Once all pending matters are officially disposed of and a certified copy of the court order, order of dismissal, judgment or disposition is received from the appropriate jurisdiction and given to Concho Bail Bonds, the monies on deposit will be returned. There will be a Thirty-five dollar ($35.00) shipping and handling fee taken from said monies on deposit if the deposit is to be mailed or sent via UPS, Fedex, DSL, or USPS. No money will be sent via Western Union unless the undersigned agrees to pay whatever it costs to send monies on deposit using Western Union.

The maximum time allowed to receive the deposit from Concho Bail Bonds to the undersigned will be no more than thirty (30) days from the date the case is disposed of. It is the sole responsibility of the undersigned to submit to Concho Bail Bonds all the required "paper work" or certified copy of the court disposition to receive the deposit back within thirty (30) days. If the time exceeds thirty (30) days, the monies on deposit will be forfeited or there will be a Fifty dollar ($50.00) fee deducted from the deposit and returned to the undersigned.

A deposit will not be given back to the undersigned if the defendant is placed on a Pre-Trial Diversion contract by the Courts. The monies will remain in escrow as a deposit until the Pre-Trial Diversion contract is completely finished or the Courts issue an order for dismissal and/or judgment.

These are the rules for the Deposit Policy for a deposit that has been placed with Concho Bail Bonds. The monies paid for the bail bond premium are non-negotiable and/or non-refundable. The bail bond premium and the monies held in deposit are two separate items and are non-interchangeable.
